

M.P. Radio — Master Context

For Gemini/Claude Code: everything specific to M.P. Radio (mpradio.fm) — the entertainer ecosystem, pricing, the CP24-style TV transformation, the arcade, the record label, and Rock-a-Way's real history. Part 3 of 4. Split from the single combined master on Sept 25, 2026 for clarity per brand.

1. What M.P. Radio Is

- M.P. Radio (mpradio.fm) is a broadcast/booking network for DJs, musicians, comedians, dancers, bands, podcasters, and songwriters, under Duell Green's Inc
- M.P. Radio will have its own .fm domain while remaining a genuine part of mppro.ca — will need substantial backlinking between the two for SEO
- Domain structure: three real domains total (mppro.ca, marketguides.ca, mpradio.fm)
- Rock-a-Way is a real event series personally created and hosted starting in 2008 (see Section 8 below) — M.P. Radio is a revival/modernization of an 18-year-old real community, not a new invented brand
- IMPORTANT CORRECTION (seen in a Claude Code build session): M.P. Radio is NOT meant to be a reggae radio station full of DJs with dubplate sales as the main thing — it's the full multi-genre entertainer ecosystem (Musicians, Bands, Comedians, Podcasters, Dancers, Songwriters, DJs, all genres), not narrowed to one genre or one revenue mechanism. "Get on the air... Musicians · Bands · Comedians · Podcasters $10/mo" is the correct, broader framing to keep
- Standing homepage requirements: eye-catching animation (entrance animations, hover/motion effects, not a static page), a visible clickable entry point to the games/arcade section, and a visible entry point to the TV/video component (MPTV) — both required, not optional or buried
- Currently, no live chat, comment, or general fan-to-fan/fan-to-artist interaction feature has been discussed or specified anywhere — a real, acknowledged gap in the platform concept as it stands, worth defining properly (e.g. live chat alongside a broadcast, comments on artist profiles, a shoutout/request mechanic) before it's built

2. Pricing & Entertainer Tiers

- Pricing: DJs at $20/month recurring; Musicians/Dancers/Comedians/Bands/Podcasters/Songwriters at $10/month plus 15% booking commission (raised from an earlier $7); Extra tier confirmed at $25/month
- Funnel entry point is specifically the $10/month base tier signup — the lowest-friction, easiest yes. The $20 DJ and $25 Extra tiers are separate, higher-commitment paths
- Annual payment perk: DJs/musicians who pay annually get one included professional recording session using the real 4-camera multi-angle setup — this means the equipment must be shown/displayed publicly, not just documented internally
- A family discount exists as a feature, separate from the livestream offering, delivered via coupons rather than automatic pricing
- Livestreaming positioned as an additional real income stream for artists; pricing model still undecided between three options: labor-time-based pricing, self-serve DJ streaming, or percentage-based pricing (a cut of platform-driven earnings)
- RESOLVED — referral system: a single-tier "Direct Referral Reward" — a flat $5 cash payout for a direct signup only, with no bonus for anything that person later brings in themselves. Avoids the Competition Act question entirely. Referral commission is not limited to managers — artists, bands, and other entertainer types can also earn it, opted into during their own initial signup flow

- A separate, non-cash "value-add ecosystem" is planned for artist retention/reward — virtual real estate, merch discounts, studio time, Golden Pass perks — deliberately kept independent of the referral mechanism

3. How the Ecosystem Works

- Designed so each entertainer type helps the others — DJs playing band tracks, promoters finding talent in one place, bands getting discovered through DJ sets
- DJs playing registered Canadian artists' music generates real SOCAN royalties for those artists — a genuine selling point
- Promoter booking flow: promoters browse profiles and fill out a request form; the request goes to the owner first, who then forwards it to the entertainer — not direct promoter-to-entertainer contact
- Standing rule: always clearly separate the broadcaster/performer side from the listener side in any pricing or platform discussion
- Talent pages structured as: a directory/roster list (photo, bio, links, Buy Dubs button per entry) linking into a fuller profile page (media player or video, dub packages for sale, station/time-slot info, a button into the live station, a separate Buy Dubs button) — same uniform template reused across Artists, Bands, and DJs
- Manager/label signup decided: the manager gets full control over their own registered artists' profiles/roster, and takes a commission on their bookings. Managed artists have no direct interaction with the site or with the owner at all. Managers get a choice of structure: join the shared roster, run as a separate but connected enterprise, or get full white-label for the right price. A custom web page/promo build is also offered for the right price
- Reconsidering whether the manager/district-manager tier is even needed now that MLM is not being pursued — still an open question. A real starting point exists: district managers are already assigned content moderation for the patron backend and compliance/broadcast-standards oversight
- District manager compensation options logged: a flat stipend for compliance work, a cut of actual regional ad revenue, the same flat $5 referral fee as anyone else, or non-cash value-add perks — pay must always tie to their own real work or a real transaction
- New idea, sparked by discovering a talented singer on Bigo Live: once agency status is approved, district managers can actively scout and recruit talent found on Bigo itself. A training manual/PDF is planned to teach district managers how to actively find more artists, tied directly to increasing their own earnings
- Considering a Patreon-style patron backend for artists — fans supporting artists directly; content policy: swearing/explicit language allowed in music, but no violence permitted
- New idea: a restricted, age-gated area (18+ confirmation, explicit-content warning) for explicit-lyric content, paired with a Bible verse about the tongue (likely James 3) as a thematic warning. Standing rule: no lyrics about killing, with one exception under discussion — dubplates — though the exact boundary isn't yet defined
- New store idea: a dedicated section where entertainers can sell their own music, comedian soundtracks/sets, dubs, and merch directly

- New idea: once entertainer MP3s are collected, remix them together — including comedians — and weave the remixed content into the actual broadcast itself
- Considering expansion to Jamaica and the UK; community radio stations noted as another outreach angle. Real interest already exists — two people were ready to sign up

4. Tools & Payment Infrastructure

- Fiverr and Voices.com identified as sourcing platforms and UX models for the booking site: Fiverr's browse-and-book packages, Voices.com's post-a-job/audition matching
- Additional design references: MySpace (classic customizable artist profile pages) and Kijiji (classifieds-style easy listing/posting)
- Payment-splitting/referral tool resolved: UpPromote is the confirmed tool for booking commissions, referrals, vendor splits, and dub plate revenue
- UpPromote confirmed capabilities: unlimited sub-affiliates/MLM depth if ever needed; a native "Network" dashboard tab; automatic QR code generation from a referral link; an automatic editable welcome email; a real developer API (aff-api.uppromote.com) plus webhooks, available from the Professional plan ($89.99/month) and up; a Free plan exists (unlimited affiliates, 200 referrals/month) but lacks the API/full white-labeling
- UpPromote is NOT reachable through Zapier. Rebrandly (a branded-link/QR tool) IS available through Zapier, with a free tier plus a $14/month Essentials tier — the practical stack is UpPromote underneath, with a Rebrandly-branded link as the visible face and the QR code generated from that
- Standing goal: every manager/artist dashboard, including UpPromote's own stats and network view, must eventually be rebuilt inside the platform's own custom backend — Claude Code territory, not this chat
- New domain/URL idea: sell subdomains (e.g. entertainer.mpradio.fm) as a premium upgrade for individual entertainers instead of a plain URL path — trades some inherited SEO authority for a more personal feel, which is why it's positioned as the paid option

5. CP24-Style Format & MPTV

- New direction: M.P. Radio built in a CP24-style format — a multi-panel visual layout (main feed plus simultaneous side panels for headlines/weather/ticker) combined with rolling entertainment/lifestyle content, not just audio. Explicitly a path toward eventually turning M.P. Radio into a TV station too
- Draft daily programming schedule: children's videos from 6am-12pm, then nature content afterward; audio radio plays throughout but can be turned off in favor of video; posters/ads and performances appear within these blocks; arcade games are part of the mix
- Backend requirement: needs the ability to upload videos/graphics directly to the CP24-style screen, and potentially grant upload access to someone else in the future — a genuine multi-user content management need, needing one real custom backend
- Ticker content: good news from around the world only, multi-language, plus weather and stock information — accessible/punchy style of the Sunday Sun, with the journalistic substance/credibility of CBC
- Confirmed: this is a complete TV station, not just a video-enhanced radio format. Planned sections: an arcade section, and at least one more still to be decided (Fantasy World has since moved to Market Guides — see Document 2)
- CLARIFIED: "MPTV" is M.P. Radio's own video/TV transformation (the CP24-style multi-panel format, WITH entertainers, that turns M.P. Radio itself into a TV station), branded under the M.P. umbrella. Deliberately held back from any public use until it can be properly registered — distinct from "Market Guides Television" (see Document 2)

- Considering a multi-language singer service via Mureka, leveraging its verified strength in multilingual accuracy
- Considering an online karaoke feature via Zoom (or similar), paired with a synced-playback method (e.g. Watch2Gether-style), with Mureka potentially generating multi-language instrumental backing tracks on demand
- Considering Bigo Live as a real revenue stream — a real official Agency/Reseller program exists (five tiers, $145-$2,950 registration, figures in USD); commission percentage has an unresolved discrepancy (20-40% vs 20-55%) needing direct confirmation with Bigo. White-labeling, embedding the stream, and automating splits via UpPromote were all checked and do NOT hold up as real options
- Has submitted a Bigo Live agency application; leaning toward Aura Talent (Toronto-based) as a possible outside agency; plans to bring in a Jamaica-based person under their own agency once approved

6. Scroll World for the M.P. Radio Build Specifically

- Three visual concepts logged for the M.P. Radio scroll build, to compare/combine/choose from: (1) a modern "Mr. Personality" hero character (the real 2008 Rock-a-Way co-host name) who guides the visitor through key scroll transitions, kept visually consistent via Higgsfield's Soul ID, positioned to eventually deliver the Good Sam reveal; (2) a vehicle traveling around the city/virtual city, tied to the Market Guides/MPPro transportation connection; (3) a broadcast signal/soundwave traveling from a transmitter tower across a city skyline into different points (a car radio, a bar, a home window)
- Campaign idea: "Protected By New Era" — a potential sponsorship tie-in with New Era Detroit (a real Detroit community organization/nonprofit doing genuine security/anti-violence work), to appear after Scroll World's opening web experience, as a transition/sponsorship moment. Real contact found: phone 313-466-4377, website neweradetroit.com

Scroll World's general mechanics apply to all three brand sites — see the full technique writeup in Document 4.

7. Arcade Games (Built for M.P. Radio)

- Arcade room within the tour: real playable games, monetized via subscriptions sold through both the tour and the website, using the same account/login as Trivia and Brain Trainer's paywall
- Pool built and tested (self-contained HTML/JS): 1-Player Practice, 2-Player Hotseat, Points Challenge mode, a persistent per-device high score with confetti on a new record, real Spin/English — all verified through direct physics testing
- Snooker built and tested: reuses Pool's proven physics engine; real 22-ball setup and rule enforcement, verified directly
- Darts (501, double-out) built and tested: correct scoring math and all three bust rules verified
- Pinball built and tested after a genuinely difficult debugging process — variable-strength flipper control verified with real measured differences; redesigned with a branded "M.P. RADIO" marquee and real pop-bumper graphics
- Sling Smash (an original slingshot-physics game, own name/characters/visuals) built and tested
- Turbo Karts (an original kart-racer, own characters/track) built and tested — rebuilt with a real behind-the-kart 3D-perspective view, Automatic/Manual driving modes, Tournament/Quick Race modes, 5 Canadian-themed tracks, and "Dino Police" hazard characters
- New arcade game ideas: an original Call of Duty-style game and an Adventure-style game, both planned, neither using copyrighted names/branding
- An "M.P. Radio Arcade" hub page links all games under one branded front door. Honest limitation: each game currently keeps its own separate high score — a true shared cross-game leaderboard needs either a real backend or merging all games into one file
- Score tracking is a real business requirement: businesses can give away merch or discounts to high scorers, tying arcade games directly into the vendor program's incentive structure
- Plan going forward: once the Claude subscription is increased, build many more games, with a specific focus on popular games from the 1980s

8. Rock-a-Way — Real Origin History (2008-2011)

Rock-a-Way is not a new invented brand — it's a real, 18-year-old event series personally created and run by Duell Green, now being revived as the foundation of M.P. Radio.

- Began 2008 as a live reggae/dancehall show at Town Talk, Toronto, personally hosted by Duell Green, originally run under the business name "Connise Advertising"
- "Mr. Personality" appears as a real co-host name from this era (alongside main host "Maxi Million") — plausible real-world origin for the "M.P." in M.P. Productions and M.P. Radio
- Evolved into "Rock-a-Way Reloaded," a weekly themed series in 2010 at Sydney's Island Restaurant, Mississauga — Culture Edition, Diva Edition, Dancehall Edition, Black History Edition
- An extensive real multi-station community radio promo campaign ran weekly for months in 2010 across 89.5 FM, CHRY 105.5 FM, Mr. Presto, Ron Nelson, and Baby G
- Continued into at least 2011 with "A Night of Musique," co-promoted with partner promoter "Tux Ent."

- Recurring real artists/hosts include Spoila (Ranks), Cyborg, Terminal, J-Logix, Petra, Lady Tremor, Kash, Ritchie B, Otis I, Josey I, Marc Trinidad, Dred Lee, DJ Champagne, Carrie Mullings, Richard Banton, King Majesty (Marvin Chin), Exco Levi, and others
- Duell Green personally handled everything end-to-end (organizing, promotion, production, sponsor outreach, logistics) except performing as the artist, DJ, or host — and personally found and secured every sponsor
- Separate from Rock-a-Way: an annual Caribana float sponsorship project — "Triple C," then "Kids United," then "Forgotten Treasures"
- The sponsor-tie-in model used then is the same structural pattern as today's Market Guides coupon booklet approach
- Real assets on file: vintage promotional flyers, a real 2011 event ticket design, and an audio file (rocks-F.mp3)

9. Independent Record Label

- Operating a newly registered Ontario sole proprietorship as an independent record label, under $25,000 revenue
- Revenue model spans live performance income (fees, door splits, merch, SOCAN live royalties) and recording income (streaming/download payouts, mechanical royalties, neighbouring rights, sync licensing)
- Standard artist agreement: 50/50 shared ownership of master recordings; artist retains 100% of songwriting/publishing rights; label holds exclusive worldwide distribution/admin rights for 3 years
- Masters registered with Connect Music Licensing; artists individually register for neighbouring rights with ACTRA RACS, Artisti, or Re:Sound directly (MROC has wound down)
- SOCAN acquired CMRRA in July 2026 — mechanical/performance rights administration is consolidating under SOCAN
- Grant strategy targets FACTOR and Ontario/Toronto Arts Council programs, with a prepared partnership-description template for jury applications
- Bi-annual royalty statements paid via Interac e-Transfer, staggered to stay under bank limits
- Tax compliance tracked via CRA Form T2125
- Already has a CD Baby account for distribution. CD Baby's real additional services: CD Baby Pro (publishing administration, mechanical royalty registration, sync licensing pitching), Social Video Monetization, physical CD/vinyl manufacturing
- PRODUCTION PACKAGES — full pricing structure: verified 2026 market-rate a la carte pricing — voice-over 30-sec commercial $40-80, VO corporate/promo 2-3 min $75-150, VO documentary narration/hr $200-350, vocal mix and polish $68-183/hr, photography session $200-1,200, videography 4-camera rig $108-408/hr plus editing $68-183/hr, drone add-on $150-400/hr, Full-Page Mini-Magazine Print Feature $150 (locked). Mureka-assisted backing track $40-75/track is UNVERIFIED. Three bundled tiers: Starter "Get Heard" $75; Core "Studio Ready" $250 (~27% genuine discount); Signature "Full Spotlight" $750 (~32% genuine discount). Funnel: $10/$20/$25 base entry, then Starter (OTO), then Core (second OTO), then an exit-intent discount, then Signature as a standing offer
- Four PRO registration guides built and verified: SOCAN (Canada), PRS for Music (UK), ASCAP/BMI (USA) — all confirmed against current official processes; JACAP (Jamaica) is honest about a real gap in publicly available steps
- "Full Release Package" bundled service concept: record → mix/master → distribute (CD Baby) → register for royalties → pitch for sync → bonus passive income — sold as one offering to both label-signed and outside unsigned artists

10. Live365 — The Actual Station Platform & Its Economics

- Live365 is the platform for scheduled, live DJ slots on one continuous stream. Canadian music licensing (SOCAN and Re:Sound) is built into all standard packages — no separate rights deal needed. Podbean stays for the talk podcast; Mixcloud is the secondary on-demand archive for recorded shows after they air
- Live365 pricing (USD, with ~1.37 CAD conversion): Broadcast 1 $59/mo (~$81 CAD; 1,500 TLH; 30GB; ~50 concurrent listeners) — the current plan; Broadcast 2 $99 (~$136; 3,500 TLH; 50GB; "Most Popular"); Broadcast 3 $199 (~$273; 7,000 TLH; 100GB; mobile apps included); Broadcast 4 $499 (~$684; 10,000 TLH; 200GB; custom apps, Alexa skill, iHeartRadio-eligible); Broadcast 5 $999 (20,000 TLH; 500GB; VIP support). TLH = total listening hours per month, not upload time
- Live365 changed pricing Sept 1, 2026: storage allocations rose 50%+, but overage billing was introduced at $0.07 per extra TLH on Broadcast plans (earlier documented at $0.05) — check the next invoice
- Add-ons: TuneIn distribution $60/mo (real reach — worth it once there's real content), Mobile App $49/mo (worth waiting until a loyal base wants it), plus a custom UK add-on. Full stack = $59 + $49 + $60 = $168/month
- Breakeven at $20/DJ/month: Broadcast 1 needs 5 DJs; Broadcast 2 needs 7; Broadcast 3 needs 14. The $20 (not $15) DJ price was chosen specifically to buffer exchange-rate swings and reach profitability with fewer DJs
- Listener-hour variance is a real cost issue: a DJ drawing 5 listeners uses 5 TLH; one drawing 200 uses 200 TLH — a 40x difference in resource cost at the same flat fee. A step-up tier for consistently high-draw DJs is a fair option IF Live365's dashboard shows TLH per individual show, not just station totals — check the analytics tab before building pricing on this
- Open items to confirm directly with Live365 (product consultation call available): whether multiple DJs can each be scheduled under one paying station account (their tools describe single-station management, not multi-tenant reselling); DJ slot length and total weekly slots based on the chosen tier's TLH; and a simple DJ agreement covering slot scheduling, content standards, payment terms, and what happens if a DJ's content triggers a licensing/copyright issue
- Existing Pay Gate can be connected to accept the recurring monthly DJ fee

11. How the Premium/Extra Tier Was Reasoned

- Rather than raising the base rate for everyone (which risks pushing away the newer, smaller acts the roster needs), a premium tier lets serious artists opt into paying more for real extra reach — the same basic-vs-promotion split Spotify, SoundCloud and others use
- Perks confirmed as individually restrictable to paying tiers (unlike station-wide Live365 add-ons): equipment/instrument access for their own recording sessions (cameras, the Zoom R24, instruments); livestream access; interviews on thetimewelivein.com (costs nothing extra, real exposure); printing discounts of 10-30% scaling by tier (TapStitch or similar); discounts on M.P. Productions' advertising services scaling by tier; family discounts available to every paying member, deepening by tier
- Practical constraint before finalizing: equipment and studio time have real scheduling limits — the premium tier may need a cap on how many hold it at once, or a booking/scheduling system for equipment access

- An intermediate "Growth" tier (~$15-18/mo: TuneIn featured placement + branded mobile app inclusion) was worked out; if 10-12 artists took it, the extra $8-11/month each covers the full $109/month add-on cost. This reasoning fed into the Extra tier now set at $25/month

12. Dub Plate Sales Tooling & Supercast

- Shopify apps identified for dub plate delivery: Tuneboom ($0-29.99/mo, real free tier) and Fileflare (free plan with 20MB storage, unlimited bandwidth/orders; paid Basic/Growth/Premium tiers; 4.9 stars across 115 reviews). Podbean (already owned) is a reasonable free host for short preview clips embedded on product pages; Groove.cm audio-only hosting is unconfirmed — check the dashboard directly
- Payment-split history: CollabPay was the first candidate (commission as % or fixed, per product or per collaborator; an 85/15 split was discussed, with an open question whether dub plate sales should match the booking commission split); replaced by GrooveSell/GrooveAffiliate; now resolved as UpPromote
- Supercast (paid private podcast feeds): real pricing is either ~$0.59 per transaction or ~$49/month platform fee plus 4-7% revenue share; acquired by Red Seat Ventures in February 2026; a free tier is already held. Decision genuinely still open — it only matters if a separate paid "bonus content for listeners" tier is deliberately added later, since podcasters were folded into the standard broadcaster structure with full episodes free on Podbean
- "M.P. Entertainment Centre" is a name that appears on internal planning documents for the entertainment side
- Historical radio contacts worth reactivating for M.P. Radio: CHRY 105.5FM and CIUT 89.5FM (from the 2010 Rock-a-Way promo campaign)
